A Novel and Extraordinary Race.

The Chihuahua correspondent of the New York Herald gives the following interesting account of a race in Mexico:

Among the Tarahumares foot-racing is a favorite diversion, and even the women compete in the lists. At times a great rivalry springs up between the adjoining towns of some districts as to the relative merits of the contestants. Within a month a rivalry of this kind, between the villages of Baconia and Sesoguiche, gave rise to the most famous foot race on record. Four of the fastest women from each town were selected, and, accompanied to an intermediate point between the towns, where there was a mountain three Mexican leagues around it by measurement of the road; around this it was stipulated that the race was to take place, the prize to be conceded to those who made the quickest time in running round the mountain fourteen times—a distance, at the very least, of one hundred English miles. At fixed points, within the circumference of the mountain, guards were stationed, who were to see that the race was conducted with fairness. The whole population of the surrounding country had assembled, with whatever they could collect of value, that they might have the opportunity of betting something upon the result which was to bring shame or honor to the rival villages. They were also sufficiently civilized to have a large quantity of the intoxicating drink—the Tezuina.

As the eight athletic creatures took their places at the starting point the excitement ran high; they were, like the old Roman athletics, stripped for the contest, the only garment worn being a short petticoat, which reached within about six inches of the knee. Our informant who stopped his travels for a day to witness this novel race, was struck with the magnificent development of muscle displayed by a swarthy looking belle, whose petticoat was a little shorter than the rest, and he therefore bet his pile on Sesoguiche. There were other finely developed creatures in the list, but none whose bright eyes, clean limbs, hard looking flesh and apparent gutta percha elasticity of motion, drew so vividly upon his imagination, and so powerfully upon his purse.

The whole bevy were off at the word go, amid the wildest excitement, and the betting commenced. The time was six o'clock and thirty-five minutes in the morning. The first, second, third, fourth and even the fifth turn was completed without any great advantage upon either side; but during the next five turns it was evident that, with the exception of the fair belle above mentioned, Sesoguiche was losing ground. She, however, kept breast and breast with two wiry creatures from Baconia. At the twelfth turn of the mountain, all but the three here mentioned dropped from the track.

The multitude was now pretty well soaked with Tezuina, and the betting ran to the wildest extremes; every one who had anything of value staked it on the race—hoes, plows and other agricultural implements, horses, cattle, sheep, pigs, goats, cats, dogs, and whatever else there was of value changed hands. The men bet their clothes, while the women pitched in and bet their petticoats. All was a wild uproar, and the Derby sweepstakes were nowhere.

The thirteenth turn was made; but it was evident that the Sesoguiche belle was getting out of wind, and, after all, had not so much bottom as the wiry contestants from Baconia. But she was not far behind, and although Baconia took the prize it was not a matter for much boasting. The two women from the latter town were received with the loudest shouts of joy by their townspeople.

They had finished the race at eight o'clock in the evening, making the whole distance, 109 miles, in thirteen hours and twenty-five minutes by the watch of our informant. One of the two Baconia women who won the race had given birth to a child ten days before, and prepared herself for the contest by bandaging her breasts. The only stops made during the time by the contestants for the prizes were either to take a little water or eat frugally of pinoli—a simple gruel made of parched corn, ground and sweetened with sugar. By the time the race was concluded nearly every Indian on the ground was drunk.

An Italian physician has recently published some comments upon the results of an inquiry made by a committee at Milan several years ago, on the treatment of hydrophobia by electricity. This treatment was suggested by its employment in tetanus. It was argued that tetanus and hydrophobia, both convulsive nervous diseases caused by the introduction of specific poisons into the system (although that which produced tetanus was yet unknown), were much akin, and that the treatment that had proved serviceable in the one case might in the other. A curious result was obtained from the experiment recorded by M. Shivardi. A little girl of about ten years old, who had been bitten by a mad dog thirty days previous, and on her entrance into the hospital had already been in hydrophobic convulsions for two days, was submitted to the continuous action of a powerful electric battery for forty-eight hours. The convulsions continually decreased in intensity, and finally stopped altogether, and the electric current was interrupted. The child seemed doing well, but expired tranquilly three days later, without any return of the hydrophobic symptoms. This case would seem to indicate that the death from hydrophobia resulted not merely from the violence of the convulsions, but from concomitant lesions of the nervous system, of which these convulsions constituted but an expression.

A gentleman leaving the company, somebody who sat next to Dr. Johnson, asked who he was. "I cannot exactly tell you, sir," replied the doctor, "and I should be loth to speak ill of any person whom I do not know deserves it, but I am afraid he is an attorney."

A woman in New Jersey swore [illegible] worked on a farm ever since he was born. To the question, "What did he do the first [illegible]" the attorney was astounded to [illegible] ready answer, "He milked."

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

PRICE 25 CENTS.

The baby was fretful and cross; not only this, it kicked and screamed and showed fight. Half the night the pugnacious little one insisted on allowing nobody to be quiet or to have rest. The slipper was tried ineffectually. The noise and row increased in proportion as slipper descended. Almost worn out, nurse was called and she quietly and confidently administered a dose of "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup." Baby stopped squalling, opened out its little clenched fists, ceased kicking, and quietly composed its eyelids for sleep. We laid awake two full hours, and—moralized, on the wonder.

The world just now is very much in the condition of baby. It is restless, and, worse than all, pugnacious. The little Island of Crete is turned topsy turvey with revolution. The Turk, with bloody scimetar and overwhelming force, seeks to crush to the very earth the impoverished, starving, desperate inhabitants of the little isle.

Greece, with her heroic antecedents and glorious recollections of two thousand years, burns to engage in the fray and meet the Moslem in open warfare.

Russia and France, armed to the teeth, snarlingly regard the unequal contest, and but wait a fair opportunity to take part and settle the "Eastern question." They both have "chips on their shoulders," and would just like to see somebody knock them off.

Hungary and the Danubian Provinces are on the very eve of completing the lesson, of the "Unities of Peoples," taught by Kossuth in '48, and perfected by Bismarck in '66.

Ireland is all in a hubbub, and Britain in a scare. Head Centres and armed Fenians everywhere abound: British bayonets bristle all around, and horse guards gallop over the Green Isle.

Maximillian still holds the unequal fight with Juarez, and when he goes, poor Mexico will again experience the luxury of civil war among her reckless chieftains.

At home, the President bullies Congress, and Congress bullies the President. Ben. Butler and Thad. Stevens, Wendell Phillips and Ashley, insist on the impeachment and removal of the "obstruction," while the Washington Star, Charleston Mercury, Richmond Enquirer, and New York News, counsel the President to resist impeachment to the bitter end.

Down in Texas, 'tis said, the unrepentant rebels have a freedman every morn for breakfast, and a loyal white serves for each day's after dinner dessert. Burning negro school houses is a holiday pastime in Mississippi, and North Carolina rejoices in the intellectual and highly amusing entertainment of the whipping post.

A writer, in the last number of Harper's Magazine, says on the authority of Major General Smith that during the six months succeeding the close of the war there were in Southwest Missouri "not less than 4,000 returned Confederates summarily disposed of by shooting or hanging."

And so we go. All around there seems the very deuce to pay. Grown up humanity is but the exaggerated exemplification of the baby, whose midnight exploits are duly chronicled in the commencement of this article. Can't somebody interpose and administer to it (on its enlarged scale) a good square dose of Mrs. Winslow's renowned panacea? Where shall we find the Nurse to administer the dose, and of what ingredients shall the latter be composed? Possibly a decoction of common sense, justice, Christian charity, and a few drops of the Golden Rule Syrup, would have a soothing effect. There's Greece, and Turkey, and France, and Ireland whose complaints, we fear, are chronic. As for the rebels, Congress has administered the Military Government bill, a patent medicine invented by Stevens, of Pa., and warranted to cure, unless taken in broken doses. But who is to discover a panacea for Congress? The President's vetoes have proved failures—they don't reach the case, and seem altogether ineffectual. Still, we conclude as we began, and recommend the Soothing Syrup.

P. S.—Last night we sat in our sanctum when the D—l came for copy. The roads are all blocked—our exchanges are snow bound. Reconstruction has become hackneyed—the loveliness of life in Zion, and the transcendant beauties of Polygamy—played out. So we despondently told our D—l that we were stumped for a subject, and he must make up the paper without the usual leader, unless he could furnish us a theme to write upon. With that quickness of thought and fertility of resource characteristic of all devils, he disappeared, and shortly returned with the label from an empty bottle. He triumphantly handed it to us—told us to write about that. We have pasted the label at the head of this article. So the reader now knows how we came to be so prosy about Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

TOPEKA, Kansas, February 13.—The editor of the Salt Lake VEDETTE, who has just arrived via Smoky Hill, states that at Downer's Station there were 7,000 Indians, who had met other tribes to decide upon war or peace. One old chief, who appeared friendly, told the coach driver if he wanted to save his life he had better leave the line before the grass grows. A lady was told at one of the stations by a principal chief that he would have her for his squaw before long.

The above is from the Washington Chronicle, of the 14th ult., and we insert it for the Indian news it contains, and at the same time to make a correction. The editor of the Salt [illegible] remains at home attending to his duties. Any one traveling on the reputation of the VEDETTE must drop it, as due announcement will be made when its editor makes a traveling tour.

BY PACIFIC TELEGRAPH.

[SPECIAL TO THE "DAILY UNION VEDETTE."]

Washington, March 5.

In the Senate, Trumbull, from the committee appointed to wait on the President, reported that the President had no communication to make to Congress at present.

A bill was introduced by Stewart, reorganizing the United States Judiciary. Tabled, until the formation of the Committees.

Senate adjourned.

In the House, the following officers were declared elected: N. G. Ordway, Sergeant-at-Arms; Chas. E. Lippincott, Doorkeeper; Wm. S. King, Postmaster of the House.

A resolution was offered that the Clerk of the House place on the rolls the names of those Territorial delegates whose credentials showed prima facie their election. Discussion ensued, from which it appeared that there are two claimants from Colorado, both having certificates of election. The resolution was tabled, and the papers of the Colorado contestants referred to the Committee on Elections.

The Clerk was then directed to place on the roll the names of the other Territorial delegates.

The Delegates from Idaho, Arizona and Dakota appeared and took the oath.

The papers in the contested seats of Burch and Van Horn of New York, and Stewart of Maryland, and the Utah election case, were referred to the Committee on Elections.

The members then drew for seats.

Rev. Dr. Boynton was elected Chaplain.

The Speaker stated that he would on Thursday, if the House was in session, announce Committees on Rules, Mileage, and Elections. He would not, however, for obvious reasons, appoint any other committees at present, unless the House otherwise ordered.

Eldridge inquired whether it was expected the House would legislate for any length of time. The Speaker could give the gentleman no information.

House adjourned.

Cotton goods are less animated; prints are in fair request, but not lively. Prices generally steady. Agents not being disposed to make concessions on standard goods, buyers from the interior purchase very sparingly, and jobbers buy accordingly.

The wool market already feels the effect of the Tariff; prices have advanced 5 cents per pound, and will go higher. The tariff on domestic woolens is not yet visibly felt.

Washington, March 5.

Considerable feeling exists in Alexandria, Va., relative to the voting of colored people at the municipal election to-day. The Gazette says the idea that negroes can vote grows out of the passage of the Military Government bill.

The Washington Chronicle says this is the first election held in the South since the passage of the Reconstruction bill, and, as threats have been made by the rebel element in Alexandria, so that the loyal men fear they or the negroes may be executed, it would be well for all parties to understand that the law will be enforced against every offender, and if the election officers refuse the negro vote they will have to take the consequences.

New York, March 6.

A Herald Mexican correspondent says the American Consul at Vera Cruz had protested against quartering French troops on American residents. One American citizen was arrested for refusing to supply quarters when called upon. The protest finally had some effect, and the quartering was discontinued.

Isham T. Harris, of Tennessee, ex-Gov. and ex-Confed., has gone to Havana, where it is supposed he will meet Breckinridge, Slidell, Mason, Benjamin and others.

The Herald's Chilian correspondence says the English and French Ministers have advised their countrymen to refuse payment of the contributions that have been ordered by the Chilian Government.

There appeared to be a lack of hearty sympathy between Chili and Peru.

The U. S. steamer Tuscarora had gone to the Fegee Islands to punish the savages for barbarities on American seamen.

New York, March 6.

Governor Pierpont, in his message to the Virginia Legislature, convened in extra session to consider the Military Government bill, after alluding to the manner in which Virginia was forced into secession against the will of a majority of her people, reviews the history of the past two years, during which time, he says, the Southern people have conducted themselves unwisely and in the most offensive manner. He regrets the rejection of the Constitutional Amendment. Alludes to the Confiscation Act following the rejection of the proposition now offered, and says that he desires to escape this danger. Three-fourths of the people, he declares, are well disposed; the trouble and irritation comes from the few. He therefore urges acceptance of the situation, and the adoption of the course marked out in the measure just adopted by Congress.

New York, March 6.

The Times' special says that General Butler's plan concerning the Impeachment project, is to appoint a Select Committee to sit during the recess of Congress, and at the same time pass a bill authorizing the Speaker to convoke Congress in extra session at the request of the Committee.

It is probable that on next Saturday Congress will take a recess till May or October.

St Louis, March 5.

The Sioux City Register, of a recent date, publishes a letter from Fort Union, stating that the fort was attacked by large bands of Indians a few days before, but they were repulsed with considerable loss after a protracted battle. The Indians generally are quite hostile, but the occupants of the fort felt confident of their ability to resist any attack.

Washington, March 5.

It is understood there will be no change in the members of the House financial committees, but that the Speaker will leave a few vacancies, to be filled hereafter.

New York, March 5.

The Post's special says the extremists of the House will try to-morrow to raise a special committee on the impeachment of the President, with General Butler as Chairman, instead of Wilson of Iowa. The intention is to constitute the committee so as to ensure extreme measures, but the success of the plan is improbable.

Fessenden withdraws from the Senate Finance Committee, which leaves Sherman, of Ohio, Chairman.

The Murder on the Plains.

In our issue of yesterday we chronicled the arrest of two men, M. S. Stickney and Geo. W. Black, said to be the authors of a bloody murder, which occurred on the Plains in the month of October last. They were both locked up in the county jail here to await their examination before a justice of the peace, and since their incarceration, facts have transpired which enables us to present a more detailed account of the deed than it was possible to obtain yesterday. From what has already come to light it appears to have been a singularly atrocious and cold-blooded transaction, the effect of a premeditated deep laid scheme on the part of a villain who ought to have been the twin brother of Iago.

Bicking, the unfortunate man who became the victim of this conspiracy, had gone out west a considerable time since in search of El Dorado, leaving his wife and family in Denver City. By hard labor as a miner he had managed to accumulate the sum of about $5,000 in gold, and was about to start for his home in the fall of last year from Salt Lake City, when he accidentally met with Stickney and Black, both bent on a similar journey. At the time he proposed to start for the Plains he was understood to be "dead broke." He induced Black to sell his horse, and accompany the party to Denver City. Black consented to do so, but being detained in Salt Lake for some time he did not overtake his companions until they reached Lone Tree Station.

Soon after Black joined them, Stickney appeared to have set himself assiduously to work to create an ill-feeling between Bicking and Black. He had discovered that the former was possessed of a large sum of money and he determined to have it in his own keeping. To this end he framed in his own mind a scheme whereby Bicking could be put out of the way without implicating himself. Owing to his secret machinations, Black, in a very short time, was thoroughly impressed with the notion that Bicking was his mortal enemy, and was waiting a convenient opportunity to murder him, while Bicking was under a similar impression with regard to Black. At length the mind of the latter was so worked upon with the idea that Bicking intended to murder him, that in order to save his own life, he took that of the other with his own hand, while Stickney plundered the murdered man of his money, which was carried in a belt around his body.

Such is the statement of the facts elicited yesterday, which, if correct, would throw by far the greater burden of guilt upon Stickney. The following is the statement made by Black yesterday while in the county jail:

STATEMENT BY G. W. BLACK.

The prisoner, Black, stated in a conversation with Judge W. A. Carter, that he made the acquaintance of Bicking at Salt Lake City, who was then coming to Denver, and that M. S. Stickney advised him (Black) to sell his horses and come on with Bicking, as it would be cheaper. Black finally concluded to sell his stock, and agreed to pay Bicking seventy dollars as fare, on his arrival in Denver. Black was, however, detained some time longer in Salt Lake than the others could afford to wait, and followed on horseback, overtaking Bicking and Stickney at Lone Tree Station, about fifty-five miles east of Fort Bridger, or one hundred and eighty miles from Salt Lake City, about the 18th of October. He said that his first impressions of Bicking were that he was a very clever, pleasant kind of a man to travel with, but that Stickney soon told him that Bicking had taken a prejudice against him, and was a dangerous man, who might do him some injury, and would shoot him if he did not look out. Black said he thought it very strange, but would try to keep on his guard. He noticed Stickney and Bicking in close conversation several times after this, and was puzzled to know what it all meant. There were several quarrels between Black and Bicking, in consequence of what Stickney had said. When they arrived at Dug Spring Station, he was in the Station house, and Bicking came in and demanded of him payment of the sum agreed on as fare. Black told him that he had not agreed to pay it till they reached Denver, but was willing to pay half of it there, and the balance at this end of the journey. He paid him the half, and then Bicking told him that he was not half so bad as Stickney had made him out to be; and that Stickney had told him (Bicking) that Black had intended to desert him without paying any money.

Nothing was stated by Black about the journey from that point till the party arrived at Washakee Station, the place where the murder was committed. This is distant about twenty miles from Bridger's Pass, one hundred and eighty miles from Fort Bridger, and three hundred and fifteen miles from Salt Lake. They encamped near there, and one of their mules strayed off. Stickney proposed to Black to wash the dishes, while Stickney and Bicking went after the mule; this was agreed to. While warming their feet at the camp fire, preparatory to starting out, Stickney got into close and whispered conversation with Bicking, and then told him in a louder voice to take his revolver along as he might be able to shoot a jackass rabbit. Bicking took his revolver along, recapped it, went to the wagon for a drink of whiskey, and the two started off in different directions. They came back in about half an ho[illegible] out the mule. Black fully exp[illegible] Bicking intended to murder [illegible]ected that fact that he seemed so s[illegible] him, from the fears were confirmed whe[illegible]spicious, and his that Bicking and he sh[illegible] it was proposed leaving Stickney wi[illegible] could go out together, out with Bickin[illegible] the wagon. He went life, took th[illegible] and being in fear of his about t[illegible] initiative, by shooting him and a [illegible] hundred yards from the camp, vie[illegible] little north of the road, and in full [illegible] of Stickney. He walked away, and Stickney went out and turned the corpse over, examined the pockets, &c., then came back to camp, remarking, "G—d d——n him; we have got rid of him at last; he will never trouble us any more."

THE FLIGHT AND ARREST.

After the murder the two men took the team to a corral at the North Platte, about sixty miles from the place, kept by Ed. Bennett, said to be a friend of Black, and left it there, with the wagon, harness, etc. They then went to the nearest station, and bought a ticket to the next station, about thirty miles distant, saying that they were going to see a man there, giving a name not known in that section. On being told that there was no such man there, they grew confused, and said something about having agreed to meet such a man there! Arrived at that point, they made no inquiries, but bought a ticket through to Denver. When the murder was discovered, it was naturally enough concluded that they had resorted to that as a sorry ruse to cover their line of retreat.

The deed might have remained forever undiscovered, and the perpetrators left to enjoy the fruits of their crime in safety, had it not been for the circumstance that the time of Bicking's departure from Salt Lake City was known to his family in Denver, and his mysterious disappearance created alarm. It appears that when he started from the mines in Colorado to go to Salt Lake, with the intention of disposing of his property and starting at once for home, he wrote to his wife that he would be back by the 1st of November, and desired her to meet him. November came and passed without any news of him, and towards the middle of December, his wife, becoming alarmed at his prolonged absence, began to entertain fears that he had fallen a victim to robbers on the way. She wrote to Judge W. A. Carter, at Fort Bridger, requesting him to institute inquiries after her husband, and before he had succeeded in gaining any information, she wrote to him a second time, stating that she had received her husband's watch, a circumstance which tended to confirm her impression that he had been killed. Judge Carter then made careful inquiries regarding the missing man, when it was discovered that he had been last seen traveling in company with Stickney and Black.

The two men were traced to Washakee Station, and there lost sight of for a time. Subsequently it was found that they had taken the stage to Denver City, at which place they were again lost sight of until they came to Illinois.

Still pursuing his investigations from time to time, Mr. Carter arrived in Chicago on Sunday, and put up at the Sherman House. He was rather taken by surprise when Stickney walked up and accosted him. He immediately called to his aid Mr. B. C. Yates, who chanced to be here on another mission, and it was decided not to arrest him until his associate Black was found. Black resided at Rockford, where he had been recently married to a Miss Dyer, and was carrying on a saloon business. He was pulled out of his bed on Monday night, and brought to this city. His companion was arrested on Tuesday, as heretofore announced.

Stickney has been living, since his return, at Etgin, occasionally coming into this city, where he has a number of highly respectable relatives. He has recently been engaged in trying to organize a company to start for the mines in Colorado.

THINGS AT PAHRANAGAT.—From Mr. William Ritter, who arrived a day or two ago from Pahranagat, we have received the following account of matters in that section. The five stamp mill, built by Major Raymond, will be taken down and re-built immediately. It was very incomplete and defective, and was altogether as unsuitable for the work of reducing silver ore as would have been a brick machine. Under the belief that the ore of the district generally could be successfully treated without roasting, the mill was erected and set to work without reverberatory furnaces. The experiment, however, proved a decided failure, and as the mineral is required to be desulphurized for effective manipulation, the owners of the mill immediately added furnaces. These were built of such material as was at hand—a refractory hard clay, believed to be well adapted for the purpose. But, like most novices, they discovered that experience is a hard school, in which severe though wholsome lessons are learned at great cost. After one or two unsatisfactory trials the arched roof of the furnaces fell in, and they were abandoned. At the same time the battery was discovered to be useless. It had been placed upon soft ground, into which the bed, which ought to be as firm as Gibraltar, was gradually sinking. The entire structure was shown to be worthless, and it was wisely concluded to tear it down and reconstruct it on a better plan as well as firmer ground. Three weeks before the departure of Mr. Ritter, the machinery for a ten stamp mill had been brought into the district from Callville, whence it had arrived by the Colorado river. This mill is for the Raymond company, by whom it will be erected at the earliest practicable moment. Seventy-five men were engaged in mining in different parts of the district. Upon the Illinois alone there were forty men employed in running three distinct tunnels for the purpose of tapping the ledge. Our informant believes that the prospects for the district are encouraging, and that the coming season will inaugurate active operations towards systematic, regular, and permanent mining. Mr. Ritter was seven days on the road between Pahranagat and this place, which he represents to be almost entirely free from snow, excepting the mountains of Hot Creek and further westward, and in no instance did he observe the snow to be over a foot deep. On the 20th instant he met two teams, which left Austin with merchandise on the 15th instant, at Quinn's Canyon, fifty miles northwest of Pahranagat. They had had no difficulty, and were traveling quite rapidly.—Reese River Reveille, 28th ult.

COLONEL CRITTENDEN, of the 32d Infantry, was to bring from Drum Barracks two companies of his regiment and recruits for the 14th in the districts of the Lower Colorado and the Verde. The latter he will leave at Fort Yuma, and proceed with his command to Tucson, where he will establish his headquarters, relieving Colonel Lovell, of the 14th, in command of the District of Tucson. On being relieved by Colonel Crittenden, Colonel Lovell will repair to Fort Yuma, and take command of the District of the Lower Colorado. All enlisted men in Arizona belonging the the 23d Infantry will be sent to San Francisco.—Arizona Gazette, 7th ult.

Local and Miscellaneous.

TO ADVERTISERS.—The VEDETTE is the pioneer daily newspaper of Utah. Its extensive circulation in every mining camp and city of Montana and Idaho, to which it gives the telegraphic despatches a whole week ahead of the Pacific papers,) makes it the most advantageous medium for advertising in these four central Territories.

FOUND OUT.—The police have for some time been on the watch after a lot of stolen property. The friends of a certain Mr. Compton have tried to keep the matter quiet, and we have been asked not to publish the facts on the grounds that an investigation would exonerate the accused. With no desire to blast the reputation of any innocent person, we have refrained from all comment until forbearance ceased to be a virtue, and we now conclude to make mention of the matter. A compromise has been effected by the friends of the accused, and unless they succeed in establishing his innocence, we will parade before the public the full authenticated account.

A meerschaum pipe, manufactured in this country, and designed for the Paris Exposition, is now to be seen in New York. The pipe itself is eleven inches in length, and the amber mouth-piece eight inches long and two inches thick. The carving on the trunk of the pipe represents the meeting of Macbeth and Banquo with the witches, on their way from the battlefield. The figures and horses are four inches in height. Surrounding the bowl, Shakespeare is represented seated in a chair, looking down upon the scene.

A DOG FIGHT.—While standing in front of Bodenberg & Kahn's store yesterday, we witnessed one of those brutal and cruel exhibitions, which men, devoid of all feelings of true humanity, exult in. A ferocious bull dog was set upon a favorite dog belonging to a merchant in this city, and had it not been for the interference of Officer Hyde, the result would have been of a serious nature. The owner of the abused animal would have made somebody repent of their wanton cruelty.

DECATUR (ILL).—In consequence of the continued excitement growing out of the removal of the capital from Springfield to Decatur, property has risen in the latter place 50 per cent. Shoaff has been offered $50,000 for his beautiful oriental cottage. The hotels are crowded with spectators. So says the Clayton Standard.

ALMOST AN ITEM.—The cry of "fire," "murder," "help," pierced our ears as we were quietly writing in our sanctum yesterday, about noon, editor, local, compositor, pressman, and the devil, all rushed to the rear of our office, from whence the cry was heard, and all returned to their several duties when it was found that only a party of inebriated individuals were on a lark.

RECOVERED STOLEN PROPERTY.—Mr. Welton, who had a quantity of jewelry stolen from him, has recently recovered it all, which consisted in a watch, several gold chains and a pistol. The man in whose possession the stolen property was found established his innocence in court, but the thief has vamosed.

THE ROADS.—The travel of stages from the north, east and west have been much interrupted of late in consequence of bad roads. The drivers say they have never experienced such deep mud for many years, and it is with difficulty that they can make the trip.

THE WESTERN STORM.—What few Western exchanges that we receive are filled with accounts of the late storm. All communication with California has been entirely cut off, and the fall of snow is measured by feeling, not inches.

SOCIAL PARTY.—The social party of Mr. Brower next Friday evening, at Independence Hall, will be worth the attendance of those who desire a pleasant evening's entertainment.

Arrivals at the Revere House.

NOT far from the Red river, in Dakota, there are numerous salt lakes and ponds, which will yet prove sources of wealth to the entire country. Hundreds of acres can be covered with evaporating vats, and millions of bushels of salt can be made for the merest trifle.

CAPTAIN HOSMER has relieved Capt. Mills, as Depot Commissary of Subsistence at Fort Yuma.

The Army.

Brevet Major August Thieman, captain 23d United States Infantry, has been sentenced by court-martial to be suspended from rank and pay proper for the period of three calendar months, and to be reprimanded in orders by the Major General commanding the Department of the East. Major General Meade, in reviewing the proceedings of the court, approves its action; but in compliance with a recommendation for mitigation of sentence, signed by members of the court, has commuted the sentence to one month's suspension from rank and pay proper. The offence of Major Thieman was absence without leave.

Major General Canby, commanding the Department of Washington, calls the attention of commanding officers serving in the department to section 3 of the act of Congress, approved December 24th, 1861, abrogating the sutlers' lien upon the pay of soldiers of the regular army.

The recruiting service established in the military division of the Pacific by Major General Halleck, for the 8th United States Cavalry, has been discontinued. The regimental recruiting service for other regiments in that division is to be continued.

Major General Thomas, commanding the Department of the Tennessee, has ordered commanding officers of companies to at once make requisition for a yearly supply of ordnance and ordnance stores.

First Lieutenant Gordon Winslow, 15th United States Infantry, has been sentenced by court-martial to be dismissed the service for drunkenness on duty. General Thomas disapproves of the findings and sentence of the court, and has ordered the release of Lieutenant Winslow.

A DOOMED BAND.—We are informed by Major Lyon, who has just arrived here from Pahranagat, that a Captain Hosmer had entered that district on the 9th instant with blankets, flour, etc., for the Pahranagat Indians. There were 70 Indians, among whom were only ten women and children present at the distribution. The band comprises about 150, of which number not to exceed 30 are women and children. It is subdivided into three small bands, under different chiefs. They appear to be an inoffensive set, and have been the prey of their more predatory and thievish Muddy and Ute neighbors, who have carried off their women and children, until they are in danger of extinction. The goods were sent by Indian Agent Head of Utah.—Reveille, 28th ult.

THE Daily Wisconsin says an ineffectual effort was made to attract Ristori to Milwaukee, to which Monsieur Grau replied: "Shentlesmen, I thanks you generally for your invite to come, but de grand expense he be too much for mine darling little angle. I takes a special trains, do you see, and that he cost de grand monish. Den I loose de go to St. Louis; and I pays mine angle more vot I gets in Milwaukee, and dat is very bad. Oh, no, shentlemens, I likes de Milwaukee very much, what you calls him; I likes de people very much, and I comes by-by, ven I gets adother little angle what's shust so good only vat dosn't cost so much of the monish, do you see."
